Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 23 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly cloudy, light rain in the west at times.

Today:
Some brightness for the north and east but most places becoming cloudy and the west seeing a lot of patchy light rain and drizzle. Winds easing in the morning but freshening around west coasts again by late afternoon.

Tonight:
Fresh or strong winds overnight, some clear spells for the north and east but cloudy with patchy rain and drizzle in the west again.

Friday:
Early cloud and rain in west will clear, most of the country seeing some brightness for a time. Winds easing during the morning and feeling pleasantly warm around east coasts.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Early rain for northern and western Scotland will clear to brighter and drier weather Saturday and Sunday. A wet and windy night on Sunday gives way to a showery Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.